ABOUT THE SEMINAR

The department of Zoology organised one day State level seminar in view of Wildlife week and wild animal's day on 4th October 2018 i.e on Thursday from 9 am to 6 pm. Main aims and objectives of the seminar are as follows;

- ✓ To educate about impact of climate change on wildlife.
- ✓ To disseminate knowledge and understanding about the importance of the conservation of wildlife.
- ✓ To emphasize that maintaining ecological balance is our responsibility.
- ✓ To encourage and motivate in conserving the wildlife.

Wildlife conservation is the practice of protecting wild animals and plant species and their habitat. Wild life plays an important role in balancing the eco system and provides stability to different natural processes of nature. Wildlife conservation has become an increasingly important practice due to the negative effects of human activity like urbanization, encroachment of forest, land mining etc. because of the interference of human, many species are becoming threatened by the varying climatic conditions for example global warming, increased pollution, destruction of forests, over usage of fossil fuels (petroleum products) due to that there will be increase in carbon dioxide concentration which leads to great impact on wildlife and its habitat.

Climate change causing draughts, earth quakes, volcanoes etc. To adequately address this crisis we must urgently reduce carbon pollution and prepare for the consequences of global warming, which we are already experiencing.

Unfortunately in name of urbanization and modern advances a large number of industries and technologies, man has become more selfish and projecting only on the welfare of himself which is not possible without the ecological balance.

Fortunately few of the conservationists and organisations have taken this is a major project and started to conserve wildlife by creating a awareness to the people about the importance of wildlife and its conversation by avoiding few of the practices which can be implemented by a common man in protecting the wildlife for the future and emphasising the knowledge of impact of the climate change and its effects on the wildlife and the importance of conservation in students.
